Introduction

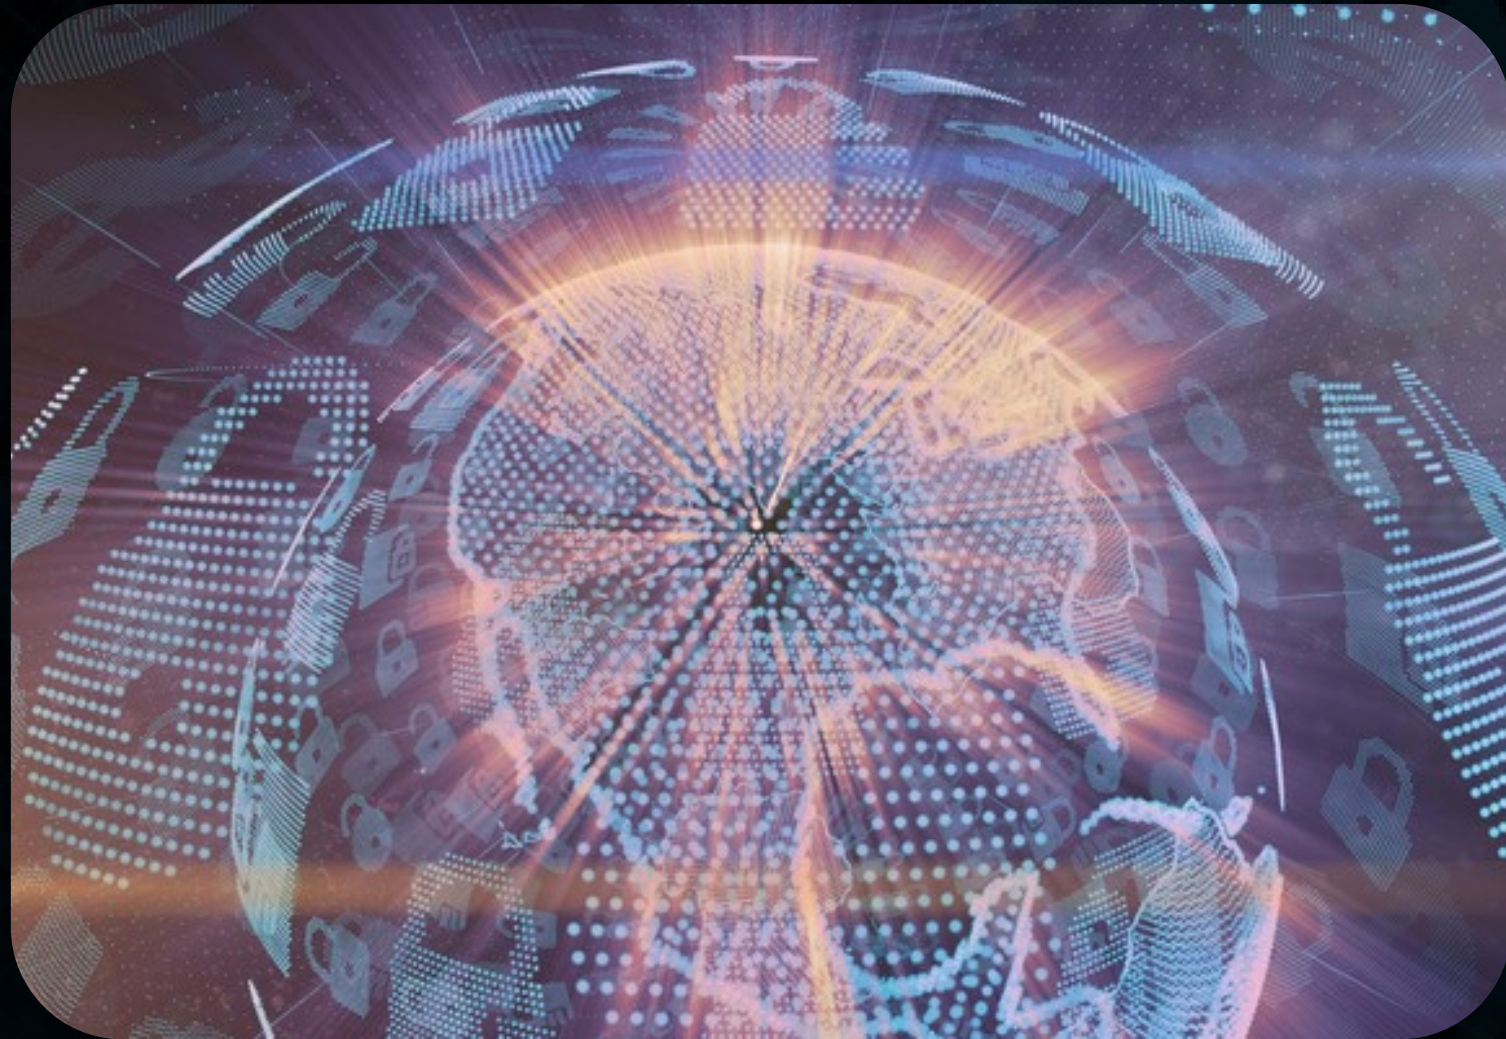

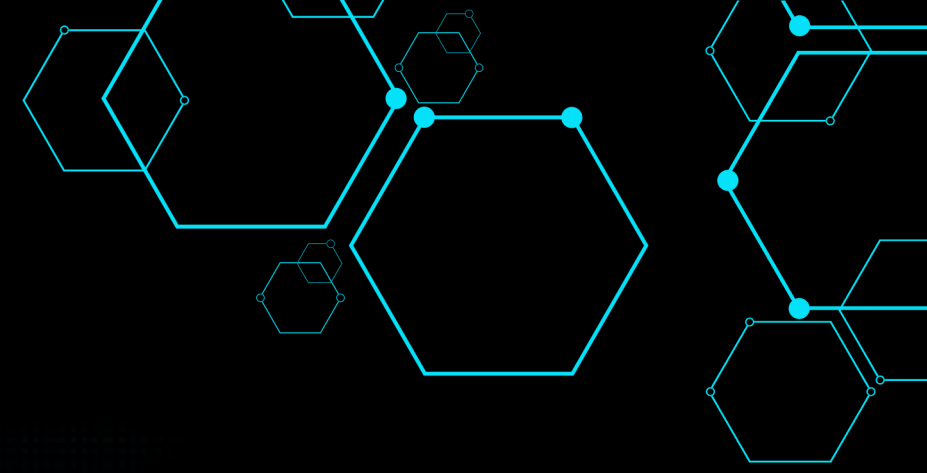

Welcome to the Future

Arbitrage Trading is a strategy where a trader buys an asset in one market at a lower price and simultaneously sells it in another market at a higher price — to profit from the price difference.

01

- Same asset, different prices in different markets
- Buy low in one market, sell high in another
- Profits are often small but considered low-risk
- Requires speed, automation, and low transaction costs

Types of Arbitrage:

1. Spatial Arbitrage – Between two exchanges (e.g., Binance vs Coinbase)
2. Triangular Arbitrage – Within one exchange using three currencies (e.g., BTC → ETH → USD → BTC)
3. Statistical Arbitrage – Uses algorithms and models to find mispriced assets
4. Crypto Arbitrage – Popular due to crypto price differences across platforms
